Excerpt: . . . of the face, and presence of God; which is that, which St. Augustine intends, when he says, Secutio Dei est appetitus beatitatis, cmsecutia beatitas; our looking towards God, is the way to blessedness, but blessedness itself is only the sight of God himself. That therefore thou mayest begin thy heaven here, put thyself in the sight of God, put God in thy sight, in every particular action. We cannot come to the body of the sun, but we can use the light of the sun many ways: we cannot come to God himself here, but yet here we can see him by many manifestations: so many, as that St. Augustine, in his twentieth chapter, De mo1ibus ecclesiw Uatholicw, hath collected aright places of Scripture, where every one of our senses is called a seeing; there is a. gustate et eidete, and audite, and palpate;...
