Excerpt: . . . laborer, teacher, with no thought of his personal advancement) the hope that you will at any rate go even if there is no such office open to you, as the young David who was some day to be king went to minister to the spirit of Saul, who was king before him, willing to starve your own life out to fill up that which the king represented--the City that has given some of you birth and all of you re-birth--willing to grow poor or to remain poor yourselves to enrich it, and knowing this know that your service to this city is perfect. You will often be disappointed as was David. Your wishes will fall through as his. You would help, as he, but cannot. Yet go on daring, O my young kings, anointed of your own puissant ambitions, stopping your despair with the cry of that same young king, 'Tis not what man does that exalts him, but what man, constantly, persistently, undauntedly and intelligently would do. If you carry that spirit into your work in the city--or wherever you go--it does not so much matter whether you have an office or not. You will be in the public service. You will be of the kings of whom democracy is dreaming. John H. Finley. THE DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICS History THE Department of Physics as it exists to-day at the College of The City of New York is the result of the annulment of...
